Assumption University Announcement

No. 7/2026

Subject: Reporting the Research/Academic Works for the IRB Approval (Revision)

In accordance with Assumption University Announcement No. 6/2022, dated April 29, 2022, on "Reporting the Research/Academic Works for IRB Approval," IRB review is intended to protect the rights, dignity, and welfare of research participants and to ensure that research involving human participants is conducted in accordance with internationally recognized ethical principles and guidelines.

As documentation of IRB approval or exemption, or other appropriate documentation confirming the research ethics status, may be required for the publication of research and academic works and for applications for academic positions or promotion, the University hereby stipulates the following additional provisions to promote compliance with research ethics requirements and ensure appropriate documentation of research and academic works:

1. Any research or academic work intended for journal publication or for use in an application for an academic position or academic promotion shall be submitted to the Assumption University Institutional Review Board (AU-IRB) for consideration of its research ethics status prior to the commencement of the research. This requirement applies regardless of whether the work involves human participants or constitutes human subjects research, so that the appropriate documentation may be issued, as applicable, including IRB approval, exemption determination, or a determination that the work does not constitute human subjects research.
2. All other provisions of Assumption University Announcement No. 6/2022 shall remain in full force and effect.
